In month XIV of SWIM project development EKOS – with significant technical support from Innoventum – conducted LTTA event in Rzeszów. All partners took part in 3-day event learning about current state-of-art considering usage of digital methods in teaching – from both the students and the teacher point of view, role of gamification in teaching and theory considering image copyrights. Partners had a chance to get a closer look on Genial.ly, Canva editor and Adobe XD and proceeded to polish up their own Visual Dictionary resources.

The training was definitely a source of valuable knowledge and practical exercises as well as the exchange of experiences with other participants.

After a three-day training course, I gained practical knowledge and skills useful in the process of learning design. I am sure that I will use them in practice and everyday work.

JANNE

Looking most of the time at the learning from a technical process perspective, especially when it comes to Visual Dictionary, I found the LTTA programme refreshing as it also offered a comparative perspective to designing learning contents when we had a crash course on Genially on the second day of the training.

DANIEL PÉREZ

The training sessions were really useful to discover the benefits of implementing gamification and visual resources in the classroom. Moreover, the Genial.ly lesson was also really beneficial for everyone in order to be able to create interactive and appealing resources that would definitely engage and motivate students.

CARINA

My personal highlight of the LTTA event in Rzeszów was working together with all partners on our visual dictionary resources and learning about new trends in teaching. The programme featured an ideal mix of theoretical and practical sessions that helped me improve my didactic skills.

TERESA VALENTE

The training session was really inspiring, both for the collaboration between all the participants and for the practical approach. The session regarding the Genial.ly platform was very interesting.

LUIS MANTILLA

The training period has been effective as I have learnt new tools for teaching my students. Thanks to the training I have develop new ideas of teaching. The environment of the meeting was friendly and close, that is something I appreciate.
